

Honoring our Nation's Veterans

Throughout history, courageous men and women have served the United States, protecting the ideals that Americans hold dear. Congresswoman Matsui believes that we have a solemn duty to ensure that our country's veterans have access to the best services and support possible.

During the 110th Congress, landmark investments have been made in veterans' services, including the largest increase in funding in the 77-year history of the Veterans Administration. Congresswoman Matsui believes that it is the duty of the government to honor the service of our veterans by providing broad access to quality health care, and streamlining the reintegration process for troops returning from overseas.
